

O-O-O-oh — you B-a-l-d-y —

Every time you see a bald head think of Woodbury's Hair Tonic. This famous hair grower was tested and improved for almost half a century before a bottle was sold through the stores. It is the only hair tonic made from the formula of the great dermatologist and saves the hair when all other preparations fail. It stops falling hair, cures dry or greasy dandruff, and relieves itching, irritated or tender scalp. You don't have to wait for results either, for the effect is noticed after the first application. It invigorates the hair roots, stimulates the circulation throughout the scalp and quickly produces a healthy growth of long, beautiful hair.

WOODBURY'S COMBINATION HAIR TONIC

costs no more than a bottle of common, ordinary hair tonic, yet Woodbury's is backed up by almost half a century of practical experience. It is the favorite hair dressing of New York's most beautiful women. It does not discolor the hair but preserves its natural color, restores its lustre and increases its vitality. Now sold by all druggists or direct from the Woodbury Company, 47 West 44th Street, New York.

Ask your doctor or your druggist about the experience of this famous hair tonic. They know.

M'KILLOP KILLS HIMSELF BY JUMP

ILLINOIS CENTRAL OFFICIAL COMMITS SUICIDE.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—During a violent attack of delirium caused, it is said by overwork and illness, Archibald J. McKillop, an official of the Illinois Central, leaped out of a second story in his home, 6608 Washington avenue, and was crushed to death on the pavement below.

The fatal leap from the window came after a desperate struggle between the man and his wife, Mrs. McKillop, who did her utmost to save her husband. Her screams brought the neighbors to the scene of the tragedy. Mrs. McKillop suffered an utter collapse and is now in a serious condition.

Skull Was Fractured.

The crushed body of the man was taken into his home by neighbors and a physician was summoned. When Dr. David D. Burgess was brought from his home, 1461 East Sixty-third place, he declared that death had been instantaneous. The man's skull was fractured and several bones in the upper part of the body were broken by the violent impact.

Mr. McKillop was 44 years of age, and he had spent most of his life in service of the Illinois Central, rising from a humble position to that of assistant superintendent of machinery. He was one of the trusted officials of the road who was called upon to replace one of the men discharged at the time the Illinois Central graft investigation began. Mr. McKillop leaves behind his widow, one daughter, Miss Jennie McKillop. Mrs. McKillop is well known in South Side society circles.

The railroad official had been ill for several days, during which time his wife had been in constant attendance. His mental condition had been such for several days that it was found necessary to have someone at his bedside continually. Yesterday Mrs. McKillop turned from her husband for a few moments and seizing the opportunity, he leaped out of his bed and toward the window.

Wife Battles with Him.

Mrs. McKillop managed to get between the window and her husband and a desperate encounter took place between the husband and wife. The woman soon became exhausted, and when her strength gave way her husband ran to the window, flung it wide open and plunged out, head foremost.

The tragedy was witnessed by a few of the neighbors. The first to reach the mangled body on the sidewalk was Mrs. M. C. Price, 6604 Washington avenue. The suicide caused a profound sensation in the neighborhood of the railroad man's home.

AN UP-TO-DATE DRUGGIST

It is surprising how many old-fashioned remedies are being used, which goes to show that it is hard to improve some of our grandmothers' old, time-tried remedies. For instance, for keeping the hair dark, soft and glossy, nothing equals our grandmothers' "sage tea" has ever been discovered. Although, by the addition of sulphur and other ingredients, this old-fashioned brew has been made more effective as a scalp tonic and color restorer. Nowadays when our hair comes out or gets faded or gray, instead of going to the garden or getting herbs and making the "tea" ourselves, we simply go to the nearest drug store and ask for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. This preparation is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

MARKET IS DULL IN THE PIT

WHEAT PRICES SHOW LITTLE CHANGE FOR WEEK.

Trading is Largely of the Scalping Variety—Little Grain is Sold Abroad.

CORN SLUMPS OFF BADLY

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Dullness, with very little change in prices, marked the wheat market last week. The trade was largely of the scalping order and that part of the trade appeared undecided, there being no pronounced buying or selling to follow. There is a great difference of opinion regarding the future of the wheat market, and this has developed a scalping market, pure and simple. The bulls are not sufficiently strong in their faith to act aggressively, and the same applies to the bear contingent. Every now and then some influential buying takes place and the pit crowd follows, but the moment selling by influential traders becomes evident the pit followers get over to the short side. When either side endeavors to even up, a scramble generally follows, and it all depends on which side starts first how the market goes.

The public has been keeping strictly away from the wheat market, resulting in very slack business for more than a few of the local commission houses.

No Wheat Sold Abroad.

Practically no wheat was sold abroad during the week, in comparison with what had been disposed of at this time during former years. Stocks continue to pile up at all points of accumulation and distribution, millers have been complaining of poor flour trade and the producer thus far has been a willing seller of his wheat. Yet consumption is going along all the time, and production has ceased for the year.

Only one day during the week was there anything like a bull market in wheat. There was some very vigorous bull campaigning in Tuesday's market, and, as is usual when the market is strong, some bullish sentiment was created. This sentiment continued through to the end of the week, although but scant progress was made toward higher prices. Stubbish fighting by a small portion of the trade and over a narrow range of prices exasperated the bulls and was expensive not only to commission houses, but to professional speculators as well. The latter element was being eaten up piecemeal daily by the jerky and frequent changes in prices. The action of the market narrowed its general scope very much. Quite a number of speculators who usually hold an interest of some importance have pulled out to give the market a chance to show its direction. Popular sentiment still leans toward a belief in higher prices, but there has not been sufficient buying power to carry the load of hedges and absorb the ordinary increase in offerings that developed with each moderate advance. Larger shorts appeared to be waiting for prices before again putting out the lines that have been covered in the last two weeks.

Few Hold Bearish Views.

There are, among the conservatives in the trade, a few who hold bearish views and are watching the market closely. These hold that the wheat market has made a very poor showing as the result of the heavy covering of short wheat during the last ten days. At almost any other time in the last two or three years the market would have responded vigorously and emphatically when relieved of the weight of the many millions of bushels of wheat that have been recently bought, according to pit testimony, by A. J. Liebster, the Armour house and others. The difference in the action of the market now and that previous to harvest this year can only be accounted for on the theory that the hedging sales made here against wheat or flour holdings are a heavy and constant weight, requiring too large a proportion of the too-limited supply of bull muscle available. Wheat is just now too plentiful in all of the markets and points of accumulation throughout the world to admit of any widespread and general buying enthusiasm. The bulls hold to the theory that the wheat has been forced into the show windows and that a real shortage will be developed later.

On Monday, although wheat was rather wavering during the early part of the session, it developed considerable strength in mid-session and gained quite a few friends. A closing break was a distinct disappointment to the bulls, however. There was considerable campaigning

AWAY WITH PIMPLES.

Poslam Makes Quick Work of Eruptions and All Surface Skin Troubles.

By taking a small part of the skin affected with pimples, rash, blotches, etc., or which is unduly inflamed, itching or chafing, and applying thereto only a small quantity of poslam, an immediate demonstration may be had of the remarkable properties of this new healing agent, and enough poslam for the purpose will be mailed free of charge, upon request, by the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York City. Spots so treated are cleared and healed in 24 hours.

Poslam puts a stop to itching as soon as applied, and its readiness in healing these small surfaces is but an indication of its rapid action in the cure of all eczemas, acne, herpes, tetter, piles, barbers' itch and all other forms of itchy, scaly scalp; in short, every surface skin affection. ("Poslam is fully much more than you claim," writes Mr. Harrison H. Allen, the author, New Gretna, N. J.)

Poslam is sold in two sizes (trial, 50 cents; regular jars, $2) by all druggists, particularly Gilbert's and R. W. Walker & Co.'s.

by the bulls among the local professions, and it was the popular impression that quite a line of wheat had been covered by Captain Phillips, the Kansas bonanza farmer. The closing decline was on free selling, headed by the Armour Grain company. Statistical news was not as bearish as during the greater part of the previous week and receipts of wheat at Duluth showed up small compared with those of a year ago.

Fluctuations on Tuesday.

Fluctuations in wheat Tuesday were even more narrow than on the previous day, but they were more frequent. Selling pressure was at no time heavy, although it increased materially on the strong spots. There was, however, some very vigorous bull campaigning, but a part of the bull contingent was apparently satisfied with small profits and sold on small rallies. There was a sprinkling of foreign buying of futures here, and some selling pressure both from the northwest and southwest. Cash wheat premiums held firm, but milling sales were very skimpy. Some of the local traders were working on both sides of the market on Tuesday.

Stubbish resistance to selling pressure was seen in wheat a good part of Wednesday, and it failed to weaken with other grains. It was equally unresponsive to buying and the market was at no time higher than about 1/4 cent below the previous day's closing figure. Popular sentiment in the trade was strongly in favor of higher prices. It was based largely on the strength shown in outside markets, the northwest in particular, because of the lighter receipts in that section. The shortage was almost entirely at Duluth. Southwestern receipts were much larger than last year, the heavy Oklahoma marketings being felt at Kansas City.

Trading Limited.

On Thursday trading in wheat was again limited in volume, price fluctuations narrow, but frequent and with undertone showing stubborn firmness. There was little trade in the September option, the bulk of the day's speculation being in December and May. Traders of every sort found it a hard market in which to transact business satisfactorily. Choppy and irregular fluctuations were so frequent that even the professional pit traders caught more whip-saws than profits all day. Sentiment was again in favor of higher prices, but it was not backed up sufficiently to absorb the wheat offered on the market swells.

Friday was another day of extremely dull trade and narrow price fluctuations. Nervous and frequent fluctuations were seen within extremely narrow limits, the trade so small that values responded readily to small buying and selling orders. Individual operations were unimportant, and legitimate influence affecting prices were rather mixed.

Corn Slumps Off.

Corn slumped off badly early in the week, but recovered some of the lost ground later when weather conditions again became unsettled. The early slump was caused by the heavy offerings of cash corn by the country and the ideal curing weather throughout the corn belt. While the official forecast showed that no frost was likely in the corn belt, it became apparent that the corn market had been oversold early in the week, and this, together with the unsettled weather conditions, helped along a recovery in prices. James A. Patten, who occasionally takes a flier in the market, is a pronounced bear on corn and has been selling quite heavily of late. Eastern demand has been only fair.

Oats followed corn as a rule and price changes for the week, as in corn and wheat, were slight.

M. Livingston & Co. Robbed.

By prizing open a shutter and smashing a rear window at the wholesale grocery of M. Livingston & company, on North First street, Saturday night, burglars gained entrance to the building and helped themselves to whisky and cigars. The proprietors are unable to tell the amount of goods stolen. The robbery was reported to the police yesterday and they are working on a clue. No trace of the property has been found so far.

WOMEN'S CLUBS IN FEDERATION

HILDEGARDE HAWTHORNE DESCRIBES MOVEMENT.

Some of the Practical Things Done by an Organization With Membership of 800,000.

A POWER IN CIVIC PROGRESS.

The development of the woman's club in scope, modernity, activity and efficiency is a truly amazing thing. It is a case of spiritual evolution, during which a small and personal motive has been transmuted into a great and altruistic force. The wisdom of the ages has often proved that it is only what you give away that you can ever possess, and the woman's clubs have proved it again. The woman who belongs to a Browning club for the sake of the personal culture to be achieved doubtless gets a return that is not to be spoken of lightly. But the woman who joins a civics club, and is the means of bringing cleanliness and order out of the dirt and confusion of her town, or of replacing graft by honesty, or of establishing free baths and reading rooms, or of saving some natural beauty or historical landmark from destruction, such a woman acquires a poise, a security, a knowledge of her own capabilities and limitations that go to strengthen the very fiber of her life, and must become a valuable asset to the race.

It was impossible for any one who attended the tenth biennial of the general federation at Cincinnati this year not to be deeply impressed with two facts: One of these was the directness, the business-like methods and the willingness to work displayed by the major part of the women assembled, the other, and the more important, was the really extraordinary democracy of the movement. This democracy was the distinguishing characteristic of that great gathering of women from every state and almost every social environment comprised in the Union; it was a welding of women into woman, and it is difficult to overestimate the meaning of such a development.

An increasing recognition of the power of the federation to get things done is one of the signs of the times. Men with a plan for constructive or preventive legislation like to get the woman's club behind them. It was the New Jersey federation that saved the Palisades. It was the effort of the General federation that passed the pure food bill.

A part of the influence of the federation lies, doubtless, in its immense power of publicity. Composed of some 12,000 clubs, with a membership of 800,000 women, it can reach the entire country, and when it votes to push a certain measure it is able to exert a personal and local power in every part of the country. When Henry Turner Bailey lectured on art at the last biennial, he voiced a plea for the mountain-laurel as the national flower, adducing a numerous array of excellent reasons for its selection, and assuring the women that their support was the one needed factor.

The insistence on the civic work of the federation may seem excessive, but it is only necessary to glance over the programs of the various clubs and state federations to see how strong is the trend in that direction. The clubs that, to quote Mrs. Decker, have come to believe in "Doing rather than Dante, and Being rather than Browning" find in civic labor a field close at hand, and one that cries to be tilled. Nevertheless, there is a vast amount of work in other directions that is occupying the federation, whose departments include, besides civic, art, civil service reform, education, food sanitation forestry, health, household economics, industrial and child labor conditions, legislation, literature and library extension. These departments have at their head women of proved efficiency, who are assisted by capable and carefully chosen co-workers. In addition, there exists the immensely important bureau of information, located at Portsmouth, to which every club may appeal for continuous or co-related programs, outlines for study, answers to perplexing questions, books and literature of various kinds, and where above all, it may keep in touch with the other clubs in the federation.—Century.

Distress Warrants Disastrous to Nashville Whisky Shops.

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 27.—With the working of serving distress warrants on liquor dealers and either collecting the license tax of closing the places of business, the results are approximately obtainable. There has been paid into the county court clerk's office about $20,000 in currency and checks. Additional amount of about $6,000 has been secured and will be paid within the next few days, making a total of approximately $26,000 in revenue received by the county and state as the result of the distress warrants issued.

Practically all of those dealers who have paid did so for a period of three months, and the amount now in the hands of the clerk and that certain to be received represents the payments of 115 or 125 dealers. In the neighborhood of 125 saloons have been closed and the stock and fixtures taken in charge by the officers. Of those closed between fifteen and twenty have opened a second time and again been closed.
